Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN.
PARIS, Sept. 17.—The Temps this morning prints a three-column special article from its Geneva correspondent declaring that the secret negotiations for peace between Italy and Turkey have yielded tangible results and that the road of the war is near. The correspondent reviews the previous attempts at mediation, the only result of which, he says, was ample proof that peace was desired by both sides.

According to the Temps correspondent Turkey's last terms are as follows: First—Turkey accepts peace as an accomplished fact on condition that Italy does not exact formal recognition of the annexation of Libya. Second—Turkey withdraws her troops, but demands to retain a port near Tunis or Egypt in order to communicate with the Arab hinterland.

Third—The Sultan retains spiritual leadership in Tripoli and Cyrenaica by a representative. Fourth—Italy pays tribute to the Arab chiefs.

Fifth—Turkey demands a port on the Red Sea, Mussowah being suggested. Sixth—Italy pays Libya's annuity. The Ottoman debt question and the Aegean Islands were not discussed. Italy recognizing that the Powers would not allow their retention after the foreclosing.

The correspondent says that a French financier has suggested that Italy negotiate a loan of $100,000,000 or $120,000,000 for Turkey. The writer understands that Italy is prepared to accept all the terms except possibly the clause as to the port on the Red Sea. He adds that Italy is already negotiating a loan with the French, English and Belgian groups of financiers.

ROME, Sept. 16.—Signor Bertolini, one of the unofficial Italian representatives at the Turco-Italian pourparlers in Switzerland, arrived here to-day and had two lengthy conferences with Premier Giolitti and Signor San Giuliano, Minister of Foreign Affairs.

It is generally believed that the negotiations for peace have been satisfactory and that official negotiations will begin as soon as a basis which is expected is reached.

SEEKING A BASIS FOR PEACE.
Lombard Difficulties Face Delegates to Swiss Conference.

PARIS, Sept. 17.—Much has been said about the peace outlook between Italy and Turkey, but I wish to add my own views respecting the peace outlook, based on the talks with the most eminent Ottoman and Italian statesmen and two of the semi-official delegates who have been carrying on informal pourparlers.

In the first place, both sides are anxious to put an end to the war, and are only waiting for a common basis. To arrive at this basis is the problem which the unofficial negotiators are set to solve.

As I am in touch with them and also with influential members of their respective Governments I am able to say that Voltaire said of the feast accomplished by St. Denis, who when decapitated picked up his head and walked all the way from one end of Paris to the other: "Ce n'est que le premier pas qui compte." In this case too it is only the first step that the parties find it impossible to take. The remainder of the journey is easy enough; the indemnity may be wrangled, the right of religious worship to Moslems, the maintenance of the Sultan's supreme spiritual power as Caliph in the annexed provinces, the taking over by Italy of part of the Ottoman debt, her readiness to renounce her privileges under the capitulations whenever all the other Powers do the same—all this and more has already been agreed to hypothetically. It is only the first step that remains to be taken, and it still seems to many as arduous as ever.

Italy insists on the cessation of the hostilities absolutely. Turkey wants something different to help her save her face. But the decree of annexation will be allowed to remain in force until the Italian ultimatum is met. It is not really the foe against whom the Italians have been fighting during the last eleven months. It is the Mohammedan population of Tripoli and Cyrenaica, most of whom are Arabs and Berbers. They have borne the

BEHOLD THE SEA ON FIRE

The Glow Along New Jersey's Shore Was Phosphorous After a Storm.

Those who live along the upper New Jersey shore saw last night a phosphorescent sea. The gleam of it reached far up the shore and touched the sand into a myriad of shining particles. It cast a circle of light above the waters and made them brilliant as when the sun comes up. All this was caused by a storm.

It was all because of a storm that passed west of us on Sunday night and made itself felt in a copious fall of rain. All day yesterday the dwellers on the coast from Atlantic Highlands to Point Pleasant noted a peculiar odor in the air. It was of phosphorus and was reminiscent of the light which came with it.

When night came there came with it the unusual light along the shore. Eighteen miles across the waves Ansbore Channel light could be seen flashing as clearly as if it were not more than three miles away. Overhead unfriendly clouds could be seen rolling in upon each other. There stretched a dome of light that made the air clear.

As the breakers came in their crests lighted up and falling back in foam spread a carpet of dancing incandescence far out from the shore. Here and there beyond the line of the breakers a wave glistened.

It was the light that the Ancient Mariner saw as he sailed mournfully with the all-powerful sea and neck and uncaringly drove his ship northward. It was the phosphorescent light not unknown to those who follow the sea at the time the seasons are turning.

POCKET PICKED OF $6,373.

Williamsburg Ex-Storekeeper Frightened at Loss of 30 Years Savings.

A pickpocket stole $6,373 from Max Syndowsky, a retired country storekeeper who lives at 32 Moore street, Williamsburg, in a crowded silver line elevated train late on Sunday night. The man's loss wasn't understood by the many people to whom he complained until he went to the Stagg street station in Williamsburg yesterday morning. He was referred to the Parkville precinct, in which the robbery was done.

Syndowsky was so distressed over his loss yesterday that he feared that he might do himself harm caused by his wife and seven children to keep a watch upon him. The money represented the savings of thirty years.

A few years ago Syndowsky bought the Moore street house, putting all his savings into his purchase. On August 15 he sold the house for $19,000 subject to mortgage for $12,500 and received $6,500 in cash.

Syndowsky's wife desired him to put the money in a savings bank, but he refused because he had lost $2,000 of a bank. Neither would he place the money in a small iron safe he had in his home. He insisted upon carrying it around with him and recently when he began to negotiate for the purchase of another house he told his wife he would soon be rid of it. He was.

WOMAN'S HATPIN STOPS MURDER.

Jabs It Into Tramp's Leg and Rescues Crippled Farmer.

Using her hatpin as a weapon, Mrs. George Enright of Pound Ridge, Westchester county, went to the rescue of a farmer who was being worried by a tramp yesterday afternoon. She used the hatpin so effectively that the tramp turned from fighting to running and was breaking records when he disappeared.

Mrs. Enright was on her way to New York with Miss Elizabeth Kirwin, also of Pound Ridge, in Miss Kirwin's auto, when they were passing through Greenvale when they saw two men struggling in a field. One was a husky tramp and the other George Burnett, a farmer, one of whose legs is crippled.

Burnett was calling for help. As the women looked they saw the tramp seize the farmer by the throat and the cries grew fainter. No one else was in sight. Mrs. Enright, pulled out a hatpin and in a moment was beside the struggling men. She drove the hatpin into the tramp's leg and again until the weapon was bent and useless. But the tramp had had enough and Mrs. Enright was left in command.

Burnett was badly hurt. He said that he had found the tramp plundering his tomato patch. Mrs. Enright and Miss Kirwin helped him into the automobile and drove him to his home.

VERTIGO ON THE FORCE.

Police Set Up That It Was the Cause of 4 Being Dead to the World.

The four mounted policemen who were found asleep in a barn on Ogden street by Chief Inspector Schmittberger on the morning of September 11 were tried yesterday before Fourth Deputy Commissioner Dillon at Police Headquarters. The policemen, William Donohue, Leo Golden, Frank P. Mallon and Frederick Plenge, were charged with being absent from post and asleep. They pleaded not guilty.

Plenge testified that he was awakened with an attack of vertigo shortly before 5 o'clock. Donohue, who was with him, suggested that they had better return to the station house. Seeing that Plenge was rapidly getting worse he whistled, and Patrolmen Golden and Mallon came up. They had just carried Plenge into the barn on Ogden street, Donohue said, when Inspector Schmittberger and the others with him entered.

The chief inspector testified that the four men were asleep when he entered the barn. Plenge's case was adjourned until the police surgeons have had an opportunity of examining him. In the cases of Donohue, Mallon and Golden decision was reserved.

HE REDUCED BY POUNDS.

New Method of Flesh Reduction Proves Astonishingly Successful.

Johnstown, Pa.—Investigation has fully established that H. T. Stetler, of this city, has reduced his weight thirty-seven pounds in an incredibly short time by wearing a simple, invisible device, weighing less than an ounce. This, when worn as directed, acts as an infallible diet reducer, dispensing entirely with dieting, medicine and exercise. Many prominent men and women have adopted this easy means of reducing superfluous flesh, and it is stated that Stetler, Prof. J. S. Burns, of No. 17 West Thirtieth street, New York, is sending these outfits on free trial to all who write him.—Ad.

GRIP ON WOMAN'S HAIR BREAKS; FALLS TO DEATH

Held by Tresses for Five Minutes, as She Hangs From High Window.

DROPS SEVEN STORIES

Frightfully Mangled, but Lives to Regret Making the Fatal Leap.

Persons living in the neighborhood of Riverside Drive and Ninety-fifth street were horrified by piercing shrieks at the rear window of apartments on the seventh floor of the West Point, at 330 West Ninety-fifth street, at 10:30 o'clock last night, as Miss Julia Wood, struggling to jump out, was being held in midair by Mrs. Henry Thompson, a maid in Mrs. Smith Thompson's apartment, a visitor in Miss Wood's apartment, who had caught her by her long hair and night gown and was trying to drag her back into the room.

For five minutes Mrs. Thompson hung on and then the hair gave way and Miss Wood shot down to the back yard, receiving injuries from which she died at the J. Hood Wright Hospital early this morning.

Miss Wood was the daughter of H. C. Wood of 2030 Dent place N. W., Washington, who is connected with the Navy Department. She was about 30 years old.

While the nurse was out of her room at 10:30 Miss Wood opened the window and started to climb to the sill. Mrs. Thompson was attracted to the room by the noise and reached the door just as she was getting out of the window. She ran toward her and caught hold of her. There was a struggle, accompanied by loud cries. The ill woman threw herself forward and Mrs. Thompson got her hand in Miss Wood's hair as her body dropped outside the window.

Bracing herself as well as she could Mrs. Thompson tugged to hold the wriggling woman up. She was not equal to the task of dragging her guest back into the room. She realized too that such a thing was impossible for a strong but middle-aged woman to tear from the scalp. So she leaned over and hung on in the hope that someone would come to the rescue.

People in the neighboring houses, particularly those whose rear windows abutted the rear yard of the West Point apartments, poked their heads out and were horrified at what they saw. They too joined in the shrieks and the side-walks were soon full of excited folk running in all directions trying to locate the cries of distress.

A Miss Knecht and another woman who were in the apartments at the time went to Mrs. Thompson's aid and did what they could to help her save Miss Wood, but without avail. While Mrs. Thompson was bravely holding on, Miss Wood's hair and nightgown gave way and the young woman dropped. Mrs. Thompson, overcome by her exertions, fell back into the room in a faint.

In falling Miss Wood struck two awnings and landed on some mattresses that had been placed across a line in the yard. She hit the ground in a standing posture.

James Logan, a taxicab driver living at 317 West Forty-third street, heard the shrieks of the women at the window and the people in the street and blew his call whistle. Policemen Smith and Meaney responded after a time that seemed long to the excited folk in the street who knew what had happened.

Mr. Edward Board, a Wall Street broker living at 227 Riverside Drive, expressed himself very forcibly to police in the street because of the long time it took to get an ambulance and policemen on the scene.

It was found that Miss Wood had been terribly hurt. Two ribs were broken and both legs were fractured at the ankle. Her right forearm was broken and the left arm was injured between the elbow and the shoulder. Her right hand was also broken. It was believed that she was also internally hurt.

The injured woman was taken after some delay to the J. Hood Wright Hospital. At the hospital Miss Wood exclaimed: "Oh, why did I do it?" and then lapsed into unconsciousness.

Miss Wood had been suffering from melancholia and nervous breakdown and had been under the care of a physician for some time. It is said that her condition was brought on as the result of worry over her mother, who died of cancer two years ago. During the past summer she visited the family of Admiral Slesbee in Maine, returning to New York a few days ago.

'WICKEDEST MAN' FIGHTS P. R. R.

Bill McGlory Seeks Writ in Williams Ave. Ejection Suit.

William McGlory, called "the wickedest man in New York" when a Billy McGlory he ran a dance hall in Hester street many years ago, applied yesterday to Supreme Court Justice Bischoff through his counsel, Bernard J. Tiney, for a writ of prohibition restraining the Pennsylvania Railroad from evicting him from the waterfront land under the 125th street end of the Williams avenue bridge. He has leased a number of old buildings there for years and rented them as stables.

The railroad wants to build a freight station there, and for that reason got an order evicting McGlory and sent men there to tear down the buildings. McGlory contends that his eviction was illegal on the ground that he still has a valid lease on the property. The court will hear the case to-morrow.

WED AT NIGHT IN STREET.

Couple Stood Up in Auto While Justice of Peace Officiated.

FRIEBEL LANDING, Sept. 16.—A midnight marriage was solemnized in the street here last night. The contracting parties were Addison Clark Angus of Briarcliff, N. Y., and Mrs. Elsie Brickerhoff Sanford of San Francisco.

The couple arrived here at 10 o'clock on Sunday night, travelling in a high powered runabout. They had just returned from a tour of Malaya. Town Clerk Conway was sought out and a marriage license obtained.

The bridegroom said he was 26 years old and the bride gave her age as 34. Policeman Mott escorted them to the home of Justice Frank S. Colwell and aroused him from bed.

Under the dim light of a street lamp the pair arose in their auto as the Justice, standing on the running board, pronounced them man and wife. As the Justice kissed the bride she declared:

"We just wanted one of the most romantic marriages possible and we had it." At that the bridegroom tossed a ten dollar bill to the Justice and drove off for New York.

Baldwin, who was Senator McPherson's secretary and executor of his will.

McPherson's estate, Mr. Baldwin died recently. Senator McPherson was not a college graduate, and had only a common school education.

ANOTHER WIRELESS LINK.

Marconi Co. Buys Land for California Stations of Its World Chain.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 16.—The Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company to-day secured 1,750 acres at Bolinas and Tomales Bay, about ten miles from San Francisco, for two wireless stations on which will be erected transmitting and receiving mechanism of 500 kilowatt power. The station will be operated simultaneously or in duplex. The total expenditures for land and stations will be $500,000.

At both transmitting and receiving stations will be twelve steel towers 350 feet high in addition to operating houses and power generating plants. When completed the San Francisco stations will communicate direct with a station to be erected at Manila, carrying messages almost 7,000 miles.

The Marconi company has acquired land for two similar wireless stations at Honolulu and structural work has already begun on the island stations.

When the San Francisco and Honolulu stations are completed there will be constant communication by wireless between these two widely separated points night and day.

The Honolulu station is the connecting link of the Marconi wireless globe girdling scheme. Messages will then be possible from San Francisco to Honolulu, to Manila, Singapore and Bangalore, to Aden, thence through Egypt to London and New York.

RESCUED HIS BRIDE AT SEA.

Thrilling Tale Brought in to Canarsie by John Donohue.

The sloop yacht Anito, owned by ex-Commodore John Donohue of the Canarsie Yacht Club, which docked at Canarsie yesterday afternoon, brought in a thrilling tale of the rescue in the Atlantic off Rockaway of the bride of Mrs. George Cravus of Atlantic Highlands, a bride of a week.

The yacht was making into Rockaway Inlet. The seas were heavy. Mrs. Cravus was at the port rail when a big roller struck the craft. Over the rail went the bride. Mr. Cravus jumped overboard, reached his bride with powerful strokes and kept afloat with her until two of the deckhands reached them in a small boat.

Gustave Walsh, another guest of Commodore Donohue, jumped to the rescue and he was pulled in by the small boat's crew.

WOMAN SUES H. W. GOULD FOR BREACH OF PROMISE

His Marriage on March 5 Caused
Nurse to Drown Herself
From Ferryboat.

PLAINTIFF ASKS $50,000

Papers Were Served in July and Attempted Settlement Fell Through.

The marriage on March 5 last of Harold Winthrop Gould, a woolen merchant and son of the late Robert S. Gould of Brooklyn, who was in the same business, caused the suicide on March 15 of Miss Mary McGovern, a trained nurse who believed that Mr. Gould intended to marry her. Yesterday a suit for $50,000 damages for breach of promise was filed against Mr. Gould by Miss Merlyle E. Leonard, who is said to live up State.

The woman to whom Gould was married on March 5 was Mrs. Sophie Deisinger, daughter of James P. McQuaide, the Pittsburgh steel man. She had divorced her husband in 1908 and lived most of the time since in Europe. They were wedded at the home of Mr. Gould's friend, Dr. Walter L. Carr, of 85 West Fifty-first street. Mr. and Mrs. Gould are now living at the Mayfield, 15 East Tenth street.

The suit of Miss Leonard was really brought on July 11 last, on which date the papers were served on Mr. Gould, but the plaintiff's attorney, George W. Files, neglected to file them in the County Clerk's office within three days as required. Mr. Files got an order from Supreme Court Justice Dugro yesterday permitting him to file the papers now and said he neglected to do so before because negotiations were pending for a settlement. Mr. Files merely left the order at the County Clerk's office. He has not yet filed the summons and complaint.

Although it was said on what seemed to be authentic information that Miss Leonard's suit was for breach of promise, Mr. Gould's attorney, H. C. Quimby, said it was only for breach of contract. He declined to admit that the contract was one of marriage.

Mr. Files said last night that his client is secretary for a New York business man. He has a number of letters, he said, which show that an understanding that Miss Leonard was to marry Mr. Gould existed for three or four years. He said he didn't care to discuss his client or her case further at this time.

When asked last night if he cared to comment on the breach of promise suit against him, Mr. Gould said he did not.

Miss McGovern, the trained nurse, who was in love with Mr. Gould, jumped from the ferryboat Steadway on its way from East Ninety-second street to Astoria. She was seen crying on the boat and jumped off just before it docked. She was brought to the deck with a boat-hook, but died on the boat.

Miss McGovern told her friends just before she killed herself that she had been preparing to be married, but the man had deserted her and married some one else. One of her roommates said that Mr. Gould gave her many presents on which his initials and hers were intertwined, and gave her an autographed photograph. He was at Pinehurst during the winter and wrote to the nurse from there, but quit writing a short time before his marriage to Mrs. Deisinger.

Mr. Gould met the nurse at the home of Dr. Carr when she was nursing Dr. Carr's son. It was Dr. Carr who identified her body. Mr. Gould is a member of the Lambs, Players, Comedy and other clubs.
